In every society, there is much to be discussed. The reasons may vary from learning more about Geography to understanding how to set up a profitable retail business. Some students may attend school to become more environmentally aware and to learn more about small business administration.

School can offer a person knowledge about academic subjects such as Geography. One is going to realize studying Physical Geography can learn about how mountains are formed, how a volcano is built, and the impact for the environment. Consequently, the student may decide to take such a class in order to make sure that our earth is protected from neglect in future generations.

Recognizing the need to earn money, many students attend school so they can learn small business administration. One of my friends from Taiwan is studying in an MBA program right now, so he can expect to work in his father's company. This student wants to attend school now so that he can develop the entrepreneurial skills which will help him grow his father's business.

In short, these reasons show that many attend school in order to become more valuable, more knowledgeable of a society, learning more about the world as well as the environment, and to understand about how to earn money in business.

Another reason is that my parents would be proud of me if I would be enrolled by a university. Meanwhile my parents thought if I went to college, I would learn much more, and could find a good job in the future so to be a good life. In fact, many classmates of mine at that time hoped that they could leave their parents to live alone. And to go to college was a good chance for them to go out. After that more students who wanted to have more freedom in the college.

After I graduated, now I think as society develops, people's conception towards education has developed, too. In their minds, college education is a necessary stage for a person to experience. Maybe they will not have a good job after they graduate, or they
